Kevin Wolf Supervisory Special Agent Criminal Investigative Division Federal Bureau of Investigation

Mr. Wolf currently serves as the FBI's Foreign Corrupt Practices Act Program Manager and helps to supervise the FBI's International Corruption program. He is one of the architects of the FBI International Corruption Strategy.

In July 2013 Mr. Wolf began servings as an International Corruption Program Manager as part of the FBI's Criminal Investigative Division at FBI Headquarters in Washington, D.C. He currently oversees matters pertaining to International Corruption, Foreign Corrupt Practices Act violations, and International Money Laundering. Mr. Wolf was heavily involved in management of the International Contract Corruption Task Force which deploys FBI agents around the world to investigate fraud and corruption related to U.S. Contingency Operations, Development Aid, and Humanitarian Aid.

From 2003 to 2013, Mr. Wolf served as a case agent in the FBI's Washington Field Office. In that role, Mr. Wolf investigated a wide variety of criminal matters to include Healthcare Fraud and Prescription Drug Diversion. In 2011 and 2012, Mr. Wolf spent time investigating Contract and Procurement Fraud, and Corruption in Afghanistan.

Prior to entering the FBI, Mr. Wolf served as an officer in the United States Air Force. Mr. Wolf lives in the Washington D.C. area.